BRICKER SAYS ORA ENTIRELY WIPED OUT

Issues Ruling Interpreting Action of U. S. and Ohio Supreme Courts.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 18 — Decisions of the U. S. and Ohio supreme courts holding unconstitutional compulsory code features of the NRA and the Ohio recovery act served to invalidate the entire Ohio recovery act, Attorney General John W. Bricker ruled today in an opinion to J. C. Lucas, assistant ORA administrator. Bricker also said that the ruling serves to wipe out the authority of the Ohio trade code administration to function as a division of the state government.

Certain provisions of the Ohio code were not ruled upon by the court when it declared the code or price fixing provisions invalid, early this summer, and the department continued to function.

However, State Auditor Tracy refused to pay many of the employes on the ground their work was not necessary governmental function. Lucas and some others still continued to function as officials and employes of the department.

The attorney general's ruling now completely outlawes the Ohio trade code commission as a department of government and none of its officials or employes is entitled to be paid.

Special delinquent assessments must be taken care of before ordinary taxes when property is sold to meet them. Bricker also ruled. He said if the proceeds are insufficient to wipe out all deficiencies, the property nevertheless is turned over to the purchaser free of tax liens.

POLICE WIN CHASE AFTER SPEEDING CAR

streets in Upper Sandusky were lined with residents pointing the direction the men had taken. Farmers also dotted the highway west of Upper Sandusky, waving directions.

Frequent reports of the progress of the chase were going out over highway patrol radio facilities and authorities from Allen and Hancock counties, gathered at Williamstown, hit upon the idea of commandeering the truck to block the highway.

The speeding car was stopped there, with the Bucyrus and Marion pursuit cars pulling in several minutes later. Authorities reported the five men "just laughed" after they were caught. They were unarmed and a search of their automobile revealed nothing but personal luggage.

They were immediately returned to the jail at Upper Sandusky for questioning and possible identification. Patrolman Kratzer drove their super-charged sedan back. Practically every resident of Upper Sandusky was out to greet the returning authorities and their quarry, Patrolman Kratzer said, and they swarmed around the jail for some time after the men were locked up.

Police in all northern Ohio cities and counties have been on the lookout for six men, armed with two machine guns and sawed-off shotguns, who cracked a safe at the Waldock Packing Co. at Sandusky early yesterday, escaping with between $1,000 and $2,000.

The safe-crackers tied up eight men on the night shift at the packing plant. The blast from the explosion was heard in a large area surrounding the plant, which is just across the Sandusky city line south of the city. Those at the plant were unable to say in which direction the gunmen left.

MARION WOMAN, AT 96, GIVES LONG LIFE SECRET

Mrs. Philomen Gregg Kerr Says "Plain Living and Plenty of Work" Is Answer.

"Plain living and plenty of work."

Therein lies the secret of her longevity, believes Mrs. Philoman Gregg Kerr of 586 Delaware avenue, who yesterday celebrated her ninety-sixth birthday anniversary. She's one of the city's oldest residents, but no one watching her quick movements, hearing her bright laugh or listening to her talk would believe her to be more than 75.

For more than 40 years she hasn't known what it is to suffer from a headache and at 96 she eats three hearty meals a day. Her one "vice," and it's a sweet one that many of her younger friends couldn't get away with, is getting up in the middle of the night for a piece of candy.

Interested in World Affairs

Haile Selassie and his troubles, all the other international affairs that are confronting the world today, affairs of the nation, state, and Marion are profoundly interesting to this unusual old lady. Members of her family admit that her daily contacts with world affairs via the radio keep her much better informed than they, and that she can discuss these affairs with far more intelligence than the average person half her years.

Until she was past 90 and her eyesight began to fail, Mrs. Kerr sat up in bed and read almost every night till past midnight. Now, instead of regretting that she used her eyes so strenuously that reading is no longer possible, she is glad she used them to advantage while her sight was keen.

Yesterday her granddaughter and namesake, Miss Philomen Gregg, who is principal of the North Main Street school, brought home an absent-voter's ballot for her to mark. Mrs. Kerr was one of the first Marion women to vote for President Harding in the year women were granted the franchise, and she has missed few opportunities to express her choice on ballots since. Fundamentally she's a Republican, but the man and his qualifications are more important than the party to which he adheres, she believes.

Showered with Gifts

Friends and relatives of Mrs. Kerr showered her with gifts yesterday, including flowers, cards and money, and last night there was a small dinner party with her nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Daze of 472 Windsor street as guests.

Mr. Daze is a retired Erie railroad engineer and Mrs. Kerr's son, P. D. Gregg, with whom she makes her home, also is an Erie engineer. Her first husband, Norman W. Gregg was an Erie engineer and her second husband, James J. Kerr of Galion, was a retired Erie man.

Mrs. Kerr is a French-Canadian, born Sept. 17, 1839, on the Isle of Jesus in the St. Lawrence river just below Montreal. Her early life was spent near Ottowa in Ontario. She was married to Mr. Gregg, a native of Vermont, in May of 1860 at Stratford, Ontario, and in 1864 went with him to Greenville, Pa., where the Atlantic and Great Western broad gauge railroad was under construction. This road later was absorbed by the Erie railroad. From Greenville they moved to Kent, and in 1882 they moved to Galion. Mr. Gregg died in Sept. 12, 1887, and seven years later she married Mr. Kerr, a native of New York state. He died 10 months later.

Came Here 15 Years Ago

Fifteen years ago Mrs. Kerr came to Marion to live with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Gregg. Mr. Gregg is the last of her four children. There are 10 grandchildren, 13 great-grandchildren, and a foster-daughter, Mrs. Jessie Harris of Cleveland.

Mrs. Kerr is the last of a family of 11 children. A brother died eight years ago a few months before he would have celebrated his one hundredth birthday anniversary. They are the only two of the family of 11 to reach an advanced age.

Mrs. Kerr has been a member of the Baptist church since 1872 when she joined the Kent church. She is now a member of Trinity Baptist church, one of the oldest members ever on the church's roster.

DILLINGER'S SEX APPEAL BLAMED FOR HIS CRIMES

Surgeon Says Notorious Criminal Committed Crimes To Show Off Before Women He Attracted.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 18 — "Sex appeal" was responsible for the late John Dillinger's life of crime, Dr. L. E. Bracken of Columbus, Ind., said today.

The notorious "public enemy" attracted women, and robbed banks and shot policemen to obtain the money to show off before them, Dr. Bracken told the American Association of Orificial Surgeons at its annual convention.

Dillinger's desire to be a ladies man was cited by the surgeon as an example of abnormal criminality indicating a need for a different system of treating crime.

Dr. Bracken said much of the groundwork of a criminal career was laid before the criminal's birth, and that therefore the fight against crime must begin with proper prenatal care.

Once enrolled in the forces against law, the surgeon said, the convict should be "treated as a sick person" on the basis of scientific study, "rather than punished as a violator of a social code."

"With no exception, the lives of the more publicized criminals of the last few years reflect an abnormality of some description," he said.

"John Dillinger was apparently devoid of fear. At the same time, he seems to have had an abundance of sex appeal, as was evidenced by the number of women he attracted. Just how much of this attraction may have been purely a desire for a thrill, we can not tell, but the mere number of women proves that Dillinger attracted them for one reason or another.

"Dillinger desired to become an aristocratic ladies' man. To do this required money. To obtain money, he turned to crime."

Gerald Thompson, Peoria, Ill., tool maker, facing death for the assault and slaying of Mildred Hallmark, was another example of the sex-twisted mind, Dr. Bracken said, but unlike Dillinger he had no sex appeal.

The surgeon said the present prison system failed to "correct the criminal tendencies" of such types because "some deep lying mental twist is not uncovered by those who contact the person during the period he is confined to the corrective institution."

NEW DEALERS LIKELY TO ASK AMENDMENT

the people must decide whether the federal government should have control over certain economic and social affairs.

In one respect, however, the Roper address went beyond the President's pronouncement, for the chief executive did not mention the matter of constitutional amendment and in answer to a question said such a change was not necessarily the answer. Roper dwelt on the subject of amendment.

"I consider the Constitution as a living mechanism and not as a dead tool," he said.

Roper attacked "opposition criticism" which, he said, "seeks popular support through false charges of unconstitutionality rather than through a positive, intelligent program."

Calls for Advance

"My answer to the wailing cry of 'back to the Constitution,' he said, "is the progressive and American challenge of 'forward with the Constitution.'"

"There is an unfounded and un-American cry in our country today," he said, "that even to think of changing the Constitution is heresy, yet the amendment clause of that document is the source of the people's greatest strength and the basic principle of our democracy." Roper added:

"If practical experience, secured in the crucible of depression years, proves conclusively that the federal government does not have the proper authority to initiate and execute a program necessary to maintain the public welfare and provide a Democratic distribution of benefits, it must be the inescapable responsibility of leadership to clarify that issue for the American people so that they may, through the means provided in the Constitution, express their collective will."

GIRL HURT IN AUTO CRASH, DRIVER HELD

Columbus Man in Wyandot County Jail After Accident Near Upper Sandusky.

Stanley Stevens, 50, of Columbus, a concessionaire at the Wyandot county fair in Upper Sandusky, is being held in the county jail at Upper Sandusky for investigation in connection with an automobile accident involving Miss Mabel Cooper, 21, colored, of Chillicothe, who is in the Marion City hospital.

Stevens was to be brought up for hearing this afternoon in Upper Sandusky on a charge of driving a car with improper license plates, a charge which was filed following investigation of the accident. Sheriff H. Weatherholtz, who arrested Stevens, said he would be held for further investigation of the accident.

The accident occurred yesterday about 4:15 p. m. on Route 23 at the turn into Upper Sandusky at the south end of the city. According to Sheriff Weatherholtz, Stevens said he didn't see the turn till it was too late to avoid an accident. The car crashed into a tree on the north side on the curve. Miss Cooper, riding in the front seat with Stevens and asleep at the time, he said, was unconscious when Sheriff Weatherholtz arrived.

She had fully regained consciousness this morning, City hospital attaches said, and her general condition at noon today was good. She was brought to the hospital in the Bringman Co. ambulance from Upper Sandusky.

Stevens told Sheriff Weatherholtz that he had picked up the girl at Worthington and that she told him she was hitchhiking to Toledo.

Sheriff Weatherholtz said he passed the car in Marion yesterday afternoon returning from taking a prisoner to Columbus, and at the time noticed the unusual number of the license plate, K 12 Q. A check after the accident showed the plates were issued in Columbus for a Chevrolet. Stevens was driving a Chandler.

Two young women called at the State Highway Patrol sub-station in Marion last night, inquiring about Miss Cooper, and one of them said she was her sister, patrolmen reported. They said they would go to the hospital and return, but they did not make a reappearance.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Sept. 18—Attorney General John W. Bricker, looking forward today to next year, saw a Republican victory on the issue of "sound government without smart-aleckness and demagoguery."

"The challenge to youth is to consider the fundamental changes going on around us, not for the expediency of the hour but in the light of the future. Youth ultimately will pay for today's activities of government."

A four days' illness from heart disease caused his death late Tuesday. Rites were arranged today at his home in Newark, O.

MORE COMPENSATION FUNDS SUGGESTED

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 18—Inadequate legislative appropriations, the Sherrill government survey said today, hampers proper administration of the workmen's compensation law by the state industrial commission.

To adequately carry on the work of protecting 1,500,000 employes with workmen's compensation, the survey recommended an appropriation increase to $1,200,000.

The commission asked the last session of the legislature for $1,555,555, but was granted $933,593. Then Gov. Davey vetoed $58,700 from the smaller amount.

CORPS LEADER SPEAKS HERE

Former Marion Salvation Army Executive Returns for Meeting.

"Behold the Man" was the sermon topic chosen by Adjutant L. M. Pervoir of Massillon in his address at the anniversary services last night at the Salvation Army hall. The service was well attended and at the close of the sermon four persons responded to an altar call.

Adjutant and Mrs. Pervior, who were stationed here in 1920, came to Marion for the anniversary week celebration, honoring the opening of the fifth year's work for Adjutant and Mrs. John Hunter with the Marion corps. They were personal friends of the late President and Mrs. Harding and on two occasions were their guests at the White House. On their visit here yesterday they visited The Marion Star office and the Harding Memorial room in the building. The visit marked the first time Adjutant and Mrs. Pervior had been in Marion to conduct meetings since leaving here 15 years ago. They returned home this morning.

Their outstanding work in the army includes taking over the relief work in the entire city during the tornado at Lorain where they were stationed in 1924. The adjutant was appointed official relief worker by Mayor George Hoffman and their record shows that 8,000 persons were provided food for a period of 10 days during the disaster.

Adjutant Pervior pointed to Christ as the healer of all diseases, the harmonizer of all discords and the savior of all mankind. "In coming to this world He had but one objective, the salvation of humanity," he stated. "He came to deal with the thing that breaks hearts, digs graves, rons Heaven and makes Hell," he continued. Christ possessed neither wealth nor position, yet He healed the multitude. He never wrote a book, yet thousands of volumes have been written about Him. He never drafted an army or a soldier, yet no one ever led more volunteers, the speaker said.

Services tonight will be in charge of Adjutant Victor Bryant of New Kensington, Pa.

Club Federation Holds First Meeting of 1935-36 Season

THE 1935-36 club season will get under way Oct. 1 when the Marion County Federation of Women's clubs will hold its first meeting of the club year.

Plans for this meeting and others to be held throughout the year were discussed at the first meeting of the executive board yesterday when 35 members met for luncheon in the recreational room at the First Presbyterian church. Mrs. Paul Knauss, who will serve as president again this year, presided.

With plans for the initial meeting in the hands of the program committee, it was decided yesterday that the year's activities would get under way with an international relations program, which would bring Henry C. Wolfe of Coshocton, traveler, lecturer and author, here as a speaker. Mr. Wolfe, who has spent the summer abroad, has much first-hand information regarding the European situation.

Mrs. Everett Grigsby, who will preside this year as literature chairman, announced the first of a series of book reviews, to be given again this year by Mrs. Depew Head of Columbus, for Saturday afternoon, Oct. 5. Mrs. Grigsby succeeds Miss Ann Moreness, who resigned as literature chairman. Mrs. Frank M. Knapp's resignation as welfare chairman, also was announced. Mrs. George E. Turner and Mrs. Robert White were named to serve on the executive committee.

A contribution of $25 was voted to the Pan-American fellowship and a scholarship loan was made to a student enrolled in college. The board accepted the gift of an elm tree from the state federation which will be planted with appropriate ceremonies at a later date. The gift is a part of a program being carried out by the state organization in which trees are to be distributed to federations throughout the state. Reports of the various chairmen completed the business session.

Dates for the book reviews are as follows: Oct. 5, Dec. 7, Feb. 1, in the afternoons, and Nov. 21, Jan. 16 and March 19, in the evenings.

The federation will sponsor the monthly meetings for October and November this season. A meeting in March will be given under the auspices of the Altrurian club and in April the federation will again act as sponsor. The annual fine art day program will feature the closing of the season in May.

MORNING STAR

— BY MARIAN STAGE —

(Copyr. 1935, by Marian Stage)

SYNOPSIS: The home life of Edwin and Emily Dorman was tending to develop into a state of armed neutrality, when the possession of an heir changed everything. Emily has something else to think of besides Edwin's stodginess, and Edwin is no delighted at anything governor almost anything. In fact, Emily finds everything else in her life considerably changed. For the first time she can devote her managing mother successfully.

CHAPTER 30

Edwin the Censor

SURPRISINGLY, it was Dorothy Shake who proved to be Emily's bulwark. Dorothy had married at 20 and had one child, a boy of seven, so that, as she put it, "the novelty had about worn off."

But she had in addition a catholic and irrepressible sense of humor and a remarkably sane outlook on life. She looked like a French doll, with her short black hair, her brilliant dark eyes, and wide, heavily rouged mouth. Edwin disapproved of her on principle and Dorothy was quite aware of his disapproval and quite unimpressed by it.

"I wonder why it is that husbands and wives never like the same people?" she laughed to Emily. "After you're married you don't go with the people you each like; you go with the people you can both stand!"

She formed a habit of dropping in almost daily, and Emily came to enjoy her more than anyone in Elston. Dorothy, like Charlotte, usually understand what you meant.

"You'll have to help me keep my sense of proportion and my sense of humor," Emily said one day. To herself she thought, "What a frail reed I am; I don't seem to be able to do anything without support from some outside source."

Dorothy smiled affectionately. "I will. I will run you ragged."

Edwin came in just then, and greeted Dorothy with unbending politeness. She crushed out her cigaret and rose.

"Heavens, is it time for husbands to be coming home? Mine is probably on the verge of apoplexy on a downtown corner, wondering why I haven't come for him.

Edwin saw her to her car, then came back and kissed his wife.

"I wish you wouldn't see so much of her," he said.

"Why not?"

"She's too—fast."

"How do you know?" Emily demanded sternly. "Has she been fast with you?"

He was so horrified that she almost laughed aloud. "Of course not! But I happen to know that she smokes incessantly and drinks too much and loses a lot at cards."

Emily's eyes were wistful. "How interesting that would be for a change!"

He stared at her in consternation. At times the strain upon his reverence for Motherhood was terrific. "Have you lost your mind?"

"Not yet, darling. Dorothy is one of the best safeguards against insanity that I know of."

"I don't care," he insisted. "I don't think she's a fit companion for—for you."

She had been good for a long time, and she couldn't resist releasing one dart.

"Are you fraid she'll corrupt your child?"

Edwin flushed hotly. "I believe you'd be sarcastic at the Bar of Heaven!" he cried.

Suddenly she was ashamed of her outburst, because teasing Edwin was such an unsporting thing to do; like shooting a partridge on the ground. Edwin was quite as bewildered and defenseless as the partridge. She held out her hands to him.

"My dear, I'm ashamed of myself! This must be corroding my disposition. Why don't you lock me up?"

Once more he was the forgiving, protecting male. "Of course I wouldn't. I was thinking of your own good; that's all."

August lay like a vast woollen blanket over Elston. Emily gave up her walks and her visits, and sat in the spray-cooled shade of her own garden, where Narcissus brought her glasses of iced milk or orange juice, and waited on her with dog-like devotion.

Narcissus, like the living-room, had vindicated her judgment. In fact, she confessed to Dorothy, Narcissus's company was far more stimulating than most of Elston's.

The victrola was paid for now, and Rosebud's wardrobe had grown from one anomalous garment to several every-day dresses and one Sunday one, besides various undergarments with which Rosebud had hitherto been unfamiliar.

As the trusted retainer of one of Elston's first families Narcissus had gained caste; had even, among her associates, begun to give herself airs. Sensing a steady income Rosebud's father had renewed his attentions, and been severely snubbed.

"He done eat me to ma'y him," she announced proudly to Emily. "But I ain't got no notion o' doin' it. I'm ti'ed o' pants."

"As long as you're getting along so well I wouldn't think of it," Emily advised her.

Narcissus sniffed. "I ain't studyin' it. I knows when I'se well off."

As her position improved she had also developed social ambitions, and her account of her first party was a high spot in Emily's day.

"I used them papuh plates youall had on yo' picnic las' week," she confided proudly.

Emily looked startled. "You did?"

"Yas'm. I washed 'em up so they looked lak new." Her shoe-button eyes twinkled. "I tol' everybody Mis' Felton brought 'em to me from Birmin'ham."

Emily laughed. "What kind of a party did you have?"

"A Silvuh Slippuh party. I called it that," she explained, "aftuh the swell dance' hall in Birmin'ham. The gues's come at ten an' lef' at two."

"But why such late hours?" She understood now why Narcissus had fallen asleep the next day with her head on the kitchen table.

"'Cause tha's whut time the Silvuh Slippuh entertains."

Emily maintained her composure. "I see. And what did you do for amusement?"

"At first," Narcissus said complacently, "they pinned the tail on the donkey. I give two prizes fo' that—a high prize an' a low one."

Emily thought of the bridge prizes and Christmas presents in her trunk. "Why didn't you tell me? I could have found some prizes for you."

"I had two you done gimme," she confessed. "I used them."

Emily was consumed with curiosity. "What were they?"

"A han'chief in a box for the high prize, an' a cake o' soap an' a wash-rag fo' the low one."

So that was what had become of the soap! She pursued the subject. "And after you'd pinned the tail on the donkey, what did you do then?"

"They jes projeckted aroun' awhile an' then they et. I had the back yard all wired off lak a square, lak this heah dance hall does, an' had fo' tables in it. The punch bowl was all draped in pink papuh, an' I aimed to use pink papuh on the wire, too, but it co's so much I used toilet papuh instead. They nevuh knowed no diff'unt."

Emily had to laugh then, but Narcissus was unoffended. "I know it looked lovely."

"Yas'm. They had a awful good time. They sure does break things, though," she added regretfully. "Aftuh they'd done broke one chair an' a bench I took my bes' chair in the house an' tol' 'em it wuz condemned. They'd a ruint it'sure."

Emily wanted to hear more, but Narcissus remembered her duties. "Good Lo'd, Miss Emily, it's neah 'bout time fo' Mr. Edwin an' I ain't even got my beans on."

She turned towards the house and then paused. "I thought I might stuff them squash today 'wid o' fryin' 'em. It'd be kinda indiffunt, fo' a change."

She couldn't dampen Narcissus's enthusiasm by telling her how averse Edwin was to "indifferent" things.

"That would be fine," she said.

Edwin looked white and worn from the heat, she noticed as he kissed her, and looking at his tired face she felt a rush of pity for the whole race of men.

What a load they carried, year in and year out! Even having children didn't quite balance the score, because if a woman was fortunate she had a good nurse and a daily respite from them. But a husband wasn't so fortunate; he had to pay the nurse.

And he had, besides, the driving realization that the whole structure rested on him; that must be worse than anything else.

And how indignant Edwin would have been if she had voiced her thoughts; he was quite able to provide for his wife!

She decided over the luncheon to broach the subject of a trip. "Edwin, darling, I wish you'd take a vacation."

He looked surprised. "I thought you'd decided you'd be more comfortable at home."

"I did. I'm talking about you."

"You mean—go alone?" He couldn't imagine going off on a pleasure trip and leaving Emily alone and helpless (he liked to think of her as helpless).

"Yes. You need a vacation so badly. From work and from me."

And tomorrow there is the great event.

The Stars Say—

For Thursday, Sept. 19

A VERY LIVELY and active state of affairs is read from the predominant lunar aspects, but these may develop opposition, friction and frustration, especially in employment or in contacts with superiors or those in authority. It is possible that a minor change may result from this or cause annoyance. But on the whole there is much encouragement for readjustments and for the making of advantageous contracts or agreements. This especially applies to all pertaining to writing or publishing.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year in which there will be many benefits through new contracts or agreements. These probably will follow difficulties or friction in employment or with superiors or those in power. All pertaining to papers, writings, publicity and promotion should flourish.

Married Comrades

— BY ADELE GARRISON —

Party Prepares to Continue Trip to Mountain Lake After Roadside Lunch.

MARY WAS a true prophet and a good judge of the luncheon appetites of our travelers. The spring air, with its winey tang, had given everybody a zest for the meal and we all cleared our plates, as Mary had predicted.

Indeed, Williams when pressed, took a second helping of everything, and the two boys pleaded for more chicken. But I knew from experience that it was eyesight, not real appetite, speaking especially as they had been served little cakes and fruit after their other viands.

So I put them off without much difficulty, with a promise of another snack for them some time during the afternoon, and they went to Scottie who was lying near the baby and Mary, watching them with eyes that never wavered from his self-imposed task.

"How soon do you want to start?" I asked Katherine, for, on account of Faith, I had made her sole arbiter of the journey's tempo.

"Not for half an hour," she said. "I don't want the motion of the car for her before then. Indeed, it will be better for all of us to be as quiet as we can for a little while after that meal. I'll help you put things away."

Little Work to Do

"There isn't much to do," I told her truthfully, for I had put things back in their places as I had unpacked them. "Just a few things to tie up, and these used plates and cups and the remnants of food to put into this small pasteboard box."

"What are you planning to do with that?" Katherine asked curiously.

"Put it in the back of Williams' car with Scot until we get to the hotel tonight, or pass some public dumping ground before. I will not leave it in this beautiful spot."

"I might have known you would think of that," she said. "You're 'Civic Virtue' in the flesh—and I don't mean that awful statue," she finished with a grin as I made a burlesqued threatening gesture. "But aren't you afraid Scottie will get the strings off the box and open it?"

"I'm not depending on strings," I said, "but on that trick Jim taught us to use with these pasteboard cartons we get from the grocery."

Cautious with Box

"Oh! that one corner of a flap down and the other up until all four are interlaced? Yes, I agree with you, Scottie would have to possess a super dog brain to fathom that. But I'm not sure he hasn't one."

"Williams can put it on the front seat," I retorted. "There's nothing in the box which can leak."

"I think you'll feel safer with it there," she commented, and then we finished clearing up, washing and drying the two basins in which the soup and Faith's puree had been heated, and packing away what was left of the lunch and the utensils we had used in getting it. Then we summoned Williams, who put back the things in the car, refusing my suggestion that the small boys help him.

"They're keeping the dog quiet, and are still themselves," he said, and added: "Don't disturb 'em," in the tone which a keeper of a zoo might have advised, "Don't stir up the animals."

"Sit down for a minute," Katherine adjured when the last thing was on its way to the cars, "and obey that classic injunction to take the weight off your feet—and your mind."

Rest on Log

She patted the log upon which she already had seated herself, and I gratefully sat down beside her, giving myself up for the moment to enjoyment of the peaceful landscape before me, with the bright May sunshine lighting up the fresh green of the spring grass and tree leaves.

It is a part of my creed, and something with which I keep faith, that one should snatch at every opportunity to bathe one's perceptions in beauty of sunshine, woods hills, fields and sea, of buildings or paintings or sculpture.

We had perhaps 20 minutes of peace with but one interruption. Williams, returning from the tree near which Junior and Roderick were sprawled with the dog, made a suggestion which I approved.

"I'd feel better if the dog were back in the car," he said. "He's quiet enough now, but if he should take a notion to chase a rabbit or a cat, we might have a time getting him. As long as I have the key safe, what do you say to letting the boys sit in the front seat of the car I'm to drive, after I've put the dog in the back?

"They can take turns pretending to drive and can keep the dog quiet. He hasn't slept yet, and I imagine when we get started again, he will curl up and take a snooze."

Your Health

BY DR. R. S. COPELAND

Noises in Head.

A SHORT WHILE ago I told you about "Meniere's disease." In that ailment the victim complains of continuous or intermittent noises in the ear. There may be accompanying symptoms, such as difficulty in hearing, dizziness, uncertain gait and often an inability to remain in an upright position.

Since writing on this subject, I have received numerous letters from persons suffering from head noises who seem to think they are afflicted with Meniere's disease. Perhaps it will be a good thing to say something about head noises so that this more common disturbance will not be confused with Meniere's disease.

In Meniere's disease the discomfort is due to some disturbance in a part of the ear mechanism called the "semi-circular canals" which control the balance of the body. The disease is serious in nature and must not be confused with the simpler ailments which produce head noises. These symptoms are frequently caused by nasal catarrh, inflammation of the nose, throat or ear. Sometimes they are due to a chronic ear disturbance or other abnormality of the ear itself or of some distant organ of the body.

Bear in mind that a head noise, referred to as "tinnitus" although an annoying complaint, is rarely serious and has no effect on length of life. It is in reality not a disease but, as I have suggested, is a symptom of some disturbance within the human mechanism. For this reason, one with this complaint should consult with a physician. A complete physical examination, including a test of the blood pressure and inspection of the nose, ears and throat, is necessary before any opinion can be given.

Some are more susceptible than others to those conditions which produce head noises. It is a symptom especially common among persons of middle age, or past. It is too bad that this complaint is so often neglected, to the continued annoyance and distraction of the sufferer.

The noise is often described as "pulsating" or "throbbing." Others describe it as a "continuous noise," or say it resembles music, winds or the ringing of bells. In severe cases the noise may be so distracting as to create marked nervousness.

This is not a complaint of much old distinction. In fact it has been known for many centuries, and ancients believed that the noise was due to evil spirits and that each one was only possible by driving them away, or out of the head. They tried to accomplish this by beating before the ears. The more enlightened have pointed out the cause and pointed out the proper way of relieving them. [illegible]

Touchy.

While government lawyers were asking the District of Columbia supreme court to throw out the first litigation arising from the Guffey coal act on Monday because it was premature, labor leaders were repeating threats to call out 400,000 coal miners next Monday morning unless operators signed more favorable working agreements. Thousands of miners in Pennsylvania who thought the strike had started stayed away from work.

Tempers in the bituminous coal industry are touchy while operators, miners and the legislators who tried to solve mining problems with a new law wait for a climax. There seems slight possibility of escaping from the mixup without damage.

If litigation to test the constitutionality of the Guffey coal act is premature, action to realize the theoretical benefits of the act must be premature, also. Organized mine labor, with the approval of an apparent majority of coal operators, forced the Guffey act through the last session of congress to improve the condition of miners by means of enabling operators to regulate the coal industry. Mine labor, because its wage agreement with operators happens to have expired pending passage of the Guffey act, is now asking for a new agreement which would reflect the mining conditions it hopes to bring about under an act which hasn't been administered yet.

John L. Lewis, spokesman for mine labor, has made it clear he will call a strike next Monday unless his demands are satisfied. It was to avert a strike, incidentally, that many congressmen voted for the Guffey act. That fact seems to have little importance now, unless Mr. Lewis is planning to change his mind at the last minute. The Guffey act, to all intents and purposes, has been abandoned before it has started. Mine labor wants its benefits before they have been realized, and mine operators, skeptical of the future, are forced to say "No."

Conservation.

President Roosevelt's belief that the civilian conservation corps is going to become a permanent part of the government is made widely acceptable by a popular belief that CCC has earned permanence.

Establishment of a branch of the government to provide employment and to conserve forests was one of the first details of the new deal, as outlined by Mr. Roosevelt in his campaign three years ago. It was one of the first new deal agencies created after Mr. Roosevelt took office.

CCC has had its ups and downs. As a proposal, it was ridiculed as an inadequate solution for unemployment. As an active agency, it was criticized for questionable purchasing methods. It has outlasted both the ridicule and the criticism.

CCC has survived and won approval because it seems to fill a definite need. The United States has not had the benefit of a forest conservation program, though recognizing the necessity for such a program. The CCC is a step in the right direction.

The CCC is an agency for another kind of conservation, the conservation of youth. Unquestionably, it has provided good training and a healthy environment for thousands of young men who were in acute need of something to do, not only to earn money but to preserve their potential usefulness to society.

The federal government has combined two circumstances, therefore, to produce a popular result. Despite everything that can be said in criticism of CCC, it has been effective. President Roosevelt's prediction that it will be permanent is based on popular acceptance of its operation up to date.

Statesmanlike Utterance.

At the dedication of an American Legion building in Cuyahoga Falls, Gov. Davey demonstrated once more last Sunday how to say the right thing at the right moment. The veterans' bonus should be paid in cash right away, he advised.

"Just between you and me," he questioned, "when they are spending millions and billions every day, what's two billions more?"

That's not difficult to answer. Two billion dollars is more than half the federal government's total revenue during the fiscal year which ended last June 30. It is more than half the ordinary expenditures of government during the same period.

True, two billions more in these days of inflated spending do not seem like a great sum. In the eyes of politicians whose minds have been unbalanced by too numerous contacts with the infection of reckless financing, two billion dollars ish just a drop in the bucket.

The alarming thing about Gov. Davey's statesmanlike utterance is the fact it reveals him so clearly as the kind of governor his critics say he is—a politician willing to say anything to get approval. Maybe his Cuyahoga Falls audience discounted his remarks, realizing that the occasion was dictating Gov. Davey's position.

So They Walked Out.

Many an otherwise questionable institution has been preserved for less cause than can be given for maintaining the League of Nations, despite its failure to come up to expectations. Consider the exit of the Polish delegation Monday when Maxim Litvinoff arose to give Russia's reply to criticism by Joseph Beck, foreign minister of Poland.

The League of Nations has provided governments a place to show the depth and width of their resentment of criticism by other governments. The method is the epitome of simplicity. Delegates need only to get up and walk out in the midst of a speech, and the whole world holds its breath.

Several years ago, Japan signified its independence by walking out on a speech condemning its Manchurian adventure. A few days ago, Italy showed its scorn of Ethiopia by refusing to stay in the same atmosphere with Ethiopian delegates. Now it is Poland which demonstrates a fine and bitter scorn by refusing to sit and listen to Russia.

In the old days, it was quite a task to convey to another government in what low esteem it was held. The usual method was to write a nasty note, which could always be warped to mean almost anything, of course. An extreme method was to shoot down a few soldiers, but that was a last resort. The League of Nations, a modern improvement, enables a government to deliver a really cruel insult with no more effort than is required to propel a resolute band of delegates from their seats to the nearest exit. No matter how low the League of Nations may fall in international esteem, it still will be a good place to walk out of.

Four Weeks.

Germany has only one reason, of course, for putting an American sailor into jail for four weeks for insulting Adolf Hitler's name. The judge who passed sentence wanted to show the United States his opinion of its attitude.

In the same way, when Magistrate Louis Brodsky of New York City commented bitterly on Germany's Nazi government in the course of remarks on the trial of persons who had insulted the Nazi flag, he had only one reason. He wanted to show the German government what he thought of it. It might be said the United States and German judiciaries have evened their score in the game of insults.

Four weeks is a long time to imprison a man who, owing no allegiance to the German government, made derogatory remarks about Chancellor Hitler. In the United States, the same man could say virtually anything he wanted to say about President Roosevelt without being arrested. Or, to make the contrast even more striking, a German sailor could run down Fifth avenue and scream insults to the U. S. government at the top of his voice without upsetting anyone particularly. Probably, he would be struck in the nose, but if he was lucky enough to get arrested before he got mobbed he would be released with some good advice and be permitted to sail back home on the next ship.

Germany is trying desperately hard to make its Nazi government respected. Unfortunately, the deficient sense of humor characteristic of Germans prevents them from seeing they are trying too hard. The latest blunder, incidentally, is adoption of the Nazi swastika as the official flag, which is the equivalent of President Roosevelt issuing a decree that the Democratic donkey would be the flag of the United States. Perhaps that wouldn't seem funny to Chancellor Hitler and his advisers, though.

For Your Information.

Five volumes—everything a tourist might want to know about the United States—the whole thing to be done in the next 10 months by 6,500 writers, research workers, photographers, map makers and clerks on relief rolls—the American equivalent of the famous Baedeker guide books which have helped tourists in Europe for generations.

That's the outline of the latest WPA project to be announced by Administrator Hopkins, who has been much in the news recently for his idea that the main purpose of relief is to provide jobs, regardless of permanent benefits from the effort expended. But an American guide book requiring the labor of 6,500 investigators is a perfect solution of the relief problem. The stimulus given bookcase manufacturers alone should come close to clearing up the unemployment problem. Every family will need those five voumes.

OLD-TIME OFFICIAL

John Caldwell, resident of Eden township, Wyandot county, served three terms as auditor and two years as sheriff of Crawford county. He was born April 23, 1799, in Pennsylvania. He also served six years as land receiver, under his appointment by President Jackson.

In 1846 he located in Eden township, purchasing 80 acres of land. In July of the same year he organized a company of 100 men to join the Mexican army. The company was rejected and disbanded at Cincinnati and Mr. Caldwell was appointed commissary, serving till the close of the war in 1848.

In 1849 he went to California and was employed as a mail carrier over the mountains, where it was supposed he was killed.

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, Sept. 18—With Ring Lardner in a better world, the town has no droll humorist to brighten life with sudden blurts. No one before or since had his queer, original slant. Yet his comic spurts were so obvious one wondered why they had never been uttered before.

Lardner's favorite rendezvous in those relaxing moments away from the typewriter was a darkened corner in the grill at the Lambs. Whenever he appeared, a gang would collect and sit expectantly awaiting some devastating snot. Sometimes he would sit owlishly until dawn before one popped out.

But, when it did, West 44th rocked with laughter for days. He loved to organize quartettes and bang, tremulously on the lingering notes of his favorite, "Sweet Adeline." One 2 a. m. he sat alone in his corner. An odd-looking actor with long hair paused before him.

After a silence, Lardner drawled: "Twelve o'clock. Unmask." But his top subtlety I think was at Atlantic City where his hit show, "June Moon," was tried out with extravagant cast. He was wandering the boardwalk late. A friend asked what he was doing there. "I'm down here," he said, "with an act."

The lower Fifth avenue sidewalk cafe section has grown picturesque with the hawkers of gimcracks much in the manner of those roaming and seedy salesmen who patrol the terraces of the Dome and Cafe de la Paix in Paris. Indeed many have seeped over from the French capital. This evening one was tootling a tune on a tin whistle and offered them for sale with printed music lessons for a dime. Another had a knapsack of tiny cages containing love birds at $1 per cage. Still another, pill-box concertinas at 75 cents.

It was good news that Tommy Meighan came back from the brink of the grave after desperate illness. Few movie actors attained such sustained popularity. For 25 years he has had a staunch following that never swung to a new idol. To this day, he is solicited for autographs almost as eagerly as newer stars. His domestic life, too, has been happy. In 1904, he met and married Frances Ring, who appeared with him in George Ade's, "The College Widow."

I found myself barging by the corner of 50th and 8th avenue every few days to squint at Shipwreck Kelly swaying in his perch atop the flag pole. In the same manner I cannot pass a marathon dance. Shipwreck is a battered jetsam tossing on life's turbulent seas and no one I can think of has been so capably named. He was struggling hopelessly to roll a cigaret in the rather swift breeze, quite an accomplishment itself. Finally he made it. He lit up, took a heel-deep inhale while gapers below rippled scattery applause. Jauntily he lifted his sailor's cap and grinned. It was one of Shipwreck's moments.

While in the neighborhood, I peeked into Jack Dempsey's tavern now in the last lap of its first year. Since opening, it has been enlarged, and is well filled. The food is palatable but the success is due to Dempsey's astonishing draw as a "front man." He rarely misses being there at noon and dinner time, shaking hands, autographing menus. It is estimated he has mitted a half million and signed as many cards. Tailored with a Savile Row flourish, barbered to the quick and Chesterfieldian, the hobo who rode the rods is something to behold.

Dempsey shares greeting gentlefications with a venerable, white-frizzed Uncle Tom, who, like his eternal shadow, Jerry the Greek, was a training camp follower of the fighter when champion. He is the door opener, tricked out in a Napoleonn hat and Hessian epaulets. His sweeping, "'Evening' Major," and high nickor chuckles at kidding are as much of the ritual as Dempsey's firm handclasp.

A tiled Taj Mahal hamburger hut hard-by Dempsey's has prospered by attending the hunger of the constant crowd at the entrances watching hopefully for a Fred Astaire, Jim Braddock or Carole Lombard. After their eyeful, they drop in for a bite and exchange of autographs.

Glancing Backward

TEN YEARS AGO.

It was Friday, Sept. 18, 1925.

Sylvester F. Leader, one of Marion's oldest residents, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. C. E. Heaney, on Delaware avenue, at the age of 91. Mr. Leader was one of Ohio's pioneers, having come to this state with his parents in a covered wagon.

C. R. Lenvons, county surveyor, T. A. O'Leary, clerk of the board of county commissioners, Robert Hedges, court stenographer, William R. Martin, attorney, and William E. Weston, former county surveyor, went to Lake Erie for a weekend fishing trip.

Frederick Keller, 17, was hailed for his achievements as an amteur radio operator. With a two-tube set, manufactured by him, he had received messages from nine stations in all sections of the globe and over a distance totaling 64,000 miles.

Miss Dorothy Myers entertained members of the M. L. A. club with a wiener roast and slumber party at her home on Girard avenue. Present were Misses Mary Simpson, Dorothy Stark, Louise Baker, Louise Rider, Jean DeWolfe, Ruth Gelbaugh and Mildred McKeever.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

It was Saturday, Sept. 18, 1915.

Washington dispatches reported that President Wilson expected to recommend sweeping amendments to the country's neutrality laws to assure the United States greater security against foreign entanglements.

With the warring forces of Europe drawing near its borders, Switzerland was fearful that its territory would be invaded and preparations were being made to meet the emergency and defend the country's neutrality.

A heat wave that had prevailed here several days was broken by rain.

Mrs. Harriett Miles, 78, widow of the late Dr. J. G. Miles, one of Marion county's pioneer physicians, died at her home in Waldo.

The Jeffrey Manufacturing company baseball team of Columbus defeated the Marion Steam Shovel company team in a game here, 7-3. Mulvane and Anderson formed the Marion battery. A large crowd of Columbus fans accompanied the visitors. It was the second game between the two teams, Marion winning the first on the Columbus grounds.

Newly elected officers of the Empire club, headed by Mrs. E. O. Uncapher as president, were installed at a meeting held in the King's Daughters rooms.

Behind The News In

Washington And Wall Street

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18—New deal liberals—the Tugwells, Wallaces, Cohens, Corcorans—are too loyal to President Roosevelt to express their palms publicly, but they are mildly disturbed over recent trends toward the right. Having almost no political savvy it's hard for them to understand that an administration must be right as well as left now and then.

What they think they detect is an accumulation of evidence that their leader's flair for pioneering and experimentation is slowly disappearing under the pressure of economic and political realities. They have in mind such things as the proclamation of a "breathing spell" to business, the rough note to Moscow, the emphasis on economy, Hopkins' curtailment of advances for construction of public power plants, the emergence of advisers known to be ultra-conservative in their views and viewpoints.

Whenever Mr. Roosevelt veered to the right in the first fine, feverish days his enthusiastic liberals assured friends not to take it too seriously. His legislative demands at the last session seemed to prove they knew what they were talking about. But now they're not so sure.

Symptoms

What worries them most is Dan Roper's closeness to the throne these days. They have good reason to know that the Secretary of Commerce feels little sympathy for the more revolutionary aspects of the new deal. They noted that he dropped into the background while they trod the stage but that now he occupies a prima donna role.

Mr. Roper, however, is the President's contact man with big business. He has nursed along the conservative boys with promises as generous as his cabinet critics have given to the liberals. With some success, too. On his recent trip to Hyde Park he reported to the President that his financial friends were disposed to accept the offer of an armistice in good faith. It was the best news Mr. Roosevelt had heard in a long while.

Mr. Roper expects to placate his business advisory committee when they meet here within a few weeks. Chairman Harry Kendall visits Washington several days a week and the secretary takes him in physical and spiritual tow. When they quit the capital in June they were threatening to resign in a businesslike body.

Bogging

The National Youth Administration has proved a distinct disappointment to its sponsors and friends. As Whirligig reported, it was framed and promulgated with almost no pioneer plowing.

It was supposed to draw up a permanent, long-time program in the interests of youngsters who cannot afford an education or who quit college only to stare at the blank wall of unemployment. So far it has drawn on its federal endowment of $50,000,000 to furnish $6 a week to needy students. It stands in danger of becoming just another work relief and lending project.

Changes in executive personnel may be forthcoming. Aubrey Williams, the actual boss, has too many other jobs for him to think out and direct a worthwhile educational program. Moreover, he is slightly temperamental. Miss Josephens Roche, advisory head, cannot find time from other duties to take on this extra work. Although few New Deal proposals provoked more favorable responses, it is bogging down badly.

Pressure

The New Deal in our colonial possessions has received only scant publicity. But the experiments in Alaska, Porto Rico and the Virgin Islands conducted by Colonial Secretary Ernest Gruening outdo some of those in the mainland.

In Porto Rico the Washington administrators have set out to break up the vast sugar plantations controlled by New York banking interests charged with exploiting the natives. Whereas American groups now control single units of 12,000 acres, these will be cut down to 500 acres if the New Dealers win a court suit they have recently brought. The native coffee growers will also pay much less for hurricane insurance in the coffee fields if a bill before congress passes at the next session. Under private insurance they can't make a profit.

Even European interests feel the heavy hand of the New Deal in the Virgin Islands. There Mr. Gruening has installed a rum factory to handle the cane sugar output. He raised wages from 35 and 40 cents a day to 55 and 60 cents. Private Danish interests protested that they could not match the raise in their rum plant and Mr. Gruening listened sympathetically. Then he learned that the principal protestant drew down a bonus of $83,000 in one year. So he jacked up the wages a little higher, and now the Danish concern is on the brink of bankruptcy.

Notes

The Department of Education is circulating to all educational authorities the opinion of Corporation Counsel Prettyman of the District of Columbia that school teachers may "teach" but not "advocate" communism. Many states have laws against "teaching communism" and the Prettyman advice may serve as a national guide ....Ham Fish, now wooing the West, has hired a publicity man to further his presidential ambitions ..He is Bob Armstrong, a veteran Washington newspaper correspondent hailing from California ....The Ickes-Hopkins work relief settlement was only an armistice..Harold is not as happy as he pretends to be.

(Copyright, 1935, McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

BY JAMES McMULLIN

NEW YORK, Sept. 18—In case you're in doubt as to whether the federal government is really engaged in the banking business New York sharps suggest a look at the figures. They have had surprisingly little publicity. Total loans by federal agencies amount to more than eight billion dollars—which does not include about two billion more that have been repaid. This is more than the total loans of all the Federal Reserve banks combined.

A very large proportion of these advances by the government was made against collateral which private banks wouldn't touch with a fifty-foot pole. Uncle Sam would be a prize optimist to rate them all as recoverable assets. Of course no accurate estimate of repayments is possible yet—but most bankers believe the treasury will be fortunate if it gets back 60 per cent of the face value of the loans.

What worries financial men is that the government is evidently in the lending game to stay. In fact its activities in that direction are quietly expanding all the time. This isn't so bad while federal loans are made chiefly to borrowers in whom the banks themselves are not interested—but there's no guarantee against future government encroachment on more desirable credit fields. "Unfair" competition of this sort would put the private institutions in a bad hole.

Ready

Well-posted New Yorkers dope the Anglo-Italian-Ethiopian situation as follows: No matter what else happens Mussolini is determined to avenge the Adowa defeat in blood. He will have his battle—and will win it. What happens afterward will depend largely on the character of his victory.

For instance, this battle should show whether the Italian effort to buy off Ethiopian tribal chiefs has succeeded. If it has, Haile Selassie's defeat will probably turn into a complete rout. In that case Il Duce might feel safe enough to go ahead and grab the whole country quick—regardless of secret agreements with Britain and France.

Britain is unlikely to take any aggressive action against Italy on the basis of a single battle. But if Mussolini gets a swelled head and plunges into repudiation of private pledges to Britain—look out for a first class war. The British feel their empire would have to be defended with all vigor to forestall its replacement by a new Roman Empire. Insiders understand that Canada has been quietly advised to get ready for any contingency.

Nerves

The prolonged squabble in the New York Teachers Union has a good deal more than local significance. Its outcome will go far to determine the future of the American Federation of Teachers and to some extent of all white-collar unions. It will also give an important clue as to how far the communists are likely to get with their tactics of boring from within the ranks of organized labor and how successful the Federation of Labor's resistance will be.

The Teachers Union has been in existence about 20 years—much longer than the American Federation of Teachers of which it became a local. For the past 10 years its officers have been plagued by a radical minority. The latter even now comprise only about 20 per cent of the total membership and there are few avowed communists among them. But they are communist led—which means they are well-organized, highly articulate and devoted to the cause of raising as much hell as possible.

Crack

President Bill Green of the Federation of Labor cordially approved the move and gave it his strongest moral support. He realized what a notable victory it would be in his battle against radical infiltration of the whole A. F. of L. But the Teachers Federation saw it differently and declined to revoke the charter—on the basis that the minority had a perfect right to express its opinions freely and should not be evicted therefor. This annoys Green intensely—but there's nothing he can do about it.

The next step was the resignation of the officers and many members of the Teachers Union. This leaves the official union entirely in the hands of the radicals—exactly what Green doesn't want. It will also encourage the left-wing sympathies of the Federation of Teachers—which are becoming quite apparent—and will set a left-wing key for other white collar unions formed or to be formed.

Burned

More than three-quarters of the rentable area in Rockefeller Center has been leased. Insiders say that—with the recent acquisition of Sinclair Oil as a tenant—the buildings are operating in the black for the first time. That's fine for the Rockefellers—but other New York landlords are holding the bag because of the methods used to fill the space.

Tenants have been lured away from other buildings in which they had leases to run for several years. Instead of the new landlord taking over the unexpired portion of the old lease—as is customary—the Rockefeller people have simply arranged to credit the payments due on the old lease against the new one while taking over the right to sublet the old space for any price they could get. Then they have sublet in buildings where the standard rate is $3 a foot for $2.50 or even $2—thus forcing an owner who has offices to fill (and all of them have) to cut his own prices in order to meet this competition in his own building. This would have been bad enough in isolated instances—but it has been done on a grand scale all over the city and has raised the devil with the whole market for office space. Most of the Rockefeller leases are long term—many as long as 21 years.

Beetles

A New Yorker recently returned from the Middle West reports this one. The government has put out over 2,000 "beetle traps" in that area which have so far caught about 104 Japanese beetles. The swell part is that if you find a beetle the government sprays your trees for nothing. So some people are paying as much as $5 to $8 for one beetle—turning it over to the government—and getting a $200 or $300 spraying job in exchange.

CONSTITUTION DAY OBSERVED

Rotary Club Hears Talk on Nation's Basic Law by Rev. W. M. Davis.

Constitution day was observed by the Marion Rotary club in its regular luncheon meeting at Hotel Harding yesterday, with Rev. William M. Davis, pastor of Calvary Evangelical church, as the speaker. Taking as his subject, "The Constitution and the Government," Rev. Davis gave a historical review of the conditions and events leading up to the drafting of the nation's basic law and pointed to it as the best guarantee of welfare and security.

"The government," he said, "must ever remain where our forefathers established it—with the people—and we are to maintain our freedom."

Devoting the major part of his address to a discussion of the preamble of the Constitution, he spoke regarding its five points—to establish justice, for the common defense, to promote the general welfare, to secure the blessings of liberty, and to establish the Constitution.

The men who drew up the Constitution, he said, were deeply religious and consequently placed first the thing they regarded as of first importance — assurance of future.

Locating the foremost place the Constitution occupies as a complete and comprehensive guarantee of national welfare, Rev. Davis read the oath administered to every President of the United States when he takes office. The oath virtually in its entirety is a pledge to uphold the Constitution.

"To my way of thinking," Rev. Davis said in concluding his address, "next to my religion and next to my God, as a citizen of the United States I want to be a defender of the Constitution of my country."

A brief informal talk was also given by Carl Cramer, Harding High school's new football coach. Mr. Cramer discussed the season's outlook and said he feels confident that this year's Harding team will come through with a creditable record of victories.

The new coach was introduced by George Albers of Marion. Both Cramer and Alber are former O. S. U. football stars.

FLIER FINALLY WINS

Patient Pombo Reaches Mexico and Sweetheart.

By The Associated Press

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 18—It took more than four months to do it, but Juan Ignacio Pombo has apparently succeeded at last—not only in completing his flight from Spain to Mexico City but in winning the hand of Maria Elena Rivero.

The senorita and her mother were packing their baggage for a trip of their own, back to Spain, but the mother said: "Now I have three children, one in Spain and two here."

Overcoming several delays due to motor trouble and bad weather, a forced landing that almost cost his life in Brazil and an acute attack of appendicitis in Costa Rica, Pombo finally landed here Monday after his flight to pay suit to his childhood sweetheart.

As he met Senorita Rivero at the Spanish embassy, Pombo exclaimed: "I have kept my promise."

One of Coach Harris Lamb's big problems is to find replacements for two stellar tackles Ayers and Knoblach

Thirty veterans and recruits are available for the squad These include nine lettermen and 15 sophomores

Virgil Murphy formerly an end will be switched to tackle under Lamb's tentative plans The available end and guard material is good but most of the candidates for tackle are green Ash and Gustin are promising tackle recruits

SCHMIDT HAS CROWD OF BACKFIELD MEN FOR BUCKEYE ELEVEN

Hot Weather Hinders Heavy Workouts for Big Ten Teams.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO Sept 18 — Coach Francis Schmidt had no many good candidates out for the backfield at Ohio State today that "they resembled a World Series crowd

Coach Schmidt had them packed three and four deep at each position Meanwhile he scratched his head trying to decide who to start and why

Coach Francis Schmidt's big problem now is to find a strong, back field combination for his Ohio State football team A combination tried Tuesday placed Stan Pincura of Lorain at quarterback Jim McDonald of Springfield at one of the halves Dick Hoelkin of Cincinnati at the other and Jumping Joe Williams of Barberton at fullback

Mid summer weather put a crimp in the drills at several Big Ten gridiron camps yesterday the teams running through signal drill and polishing up with dummy scrimmages

Purdue's hopes of more Boilermaker punch in the backfield arose as John Drake junior fullback broke away for runs of 20 yards or longer to score four touchdowns in hard scrimmage The Boilermakers staged one of their best workouts of the season

Minnesota's first string also engaged in a scrimmage and pleased Coach Bernie Bierman with plenty of dash and fire Duffy Thompson sophomore back raced 100 yards for a touchdown through the reserves on a kick off and Julius Alfonse scored two more Blocking and tackling showed a big improvement

Coach Doc Spears sent his first team through a brief scrimmage and the Badgers clicked with two rapid fire touchdowns against the third team Eddie Jankowski and Clarence Thompson lofting the ball over Allan Mahanke 1934 letterman returned and was tried out at end

At Illinois the regulars defeated the reserves 16 to 6 in a regulation game scoring on two blocked punts and a 18-yard pass from Les Lindberg to Gene Dikstra Five of the Illini were on the sidelines how ever with leg injuries

Indiana and Northwestern had yet to scrimmage figuring the weather too hot At Iowa Ossie Solem concentrated on individual instruction demanding greater speed by blocking to open a path for battering Dick Crayne

CHICAGO CUBS TAKE 14TH STRAIGHT WIN TO INCREASE LEAD

Cards Split Twin Bill With Dodgers, Tigers Margin Shaved

By ANDY CLARKE
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Chicago Cubs sweep on leaving behind the riddled Giants gathering steam for the Cardinal Jousts that lie ahead

They made it 14 straight wins yesterday these madcap Cubs who have come from the rear to gain a 2½ game lead on the Cards and 5½ on the Giants

They play two more with the New Yorkers two more with Pittsburgh then on to St Louis where they play five games with Frisch's naughty boys in the series that probably will decide where the pennant shall wave

Schumacher Hurt

The Giants proved jittery under pressure yesterday as the Cubs beat them 5 3 Hal Schumacher hogtied them for five innings

He injured his shoulder how ever and on his retirement Joe Moore and Hank Leiber made a pair of errors that handed the game to the Cubs

St Louis split a doubleheader with the Brooklyn Dodgers as only one of the Dean brothers came through as relief hurlers Paul went to the mound in the final innings of the first game with one run in and none out to stop the Stengel boys and give the Cards a 4 2 victory

Dizzy called to duty with the Cards one run ahead in the seventh frame of the nightcap failed where his brother succeeded and lost 8 7 as the Dodgers hopped on him for three runs

The Pittsburgh Pirates collected five runs in the first inning of their game with the innocuous Braves and then coasted home to a 6-4 victory

Philadelphia scored a total of four runs to take both ends of a doubleheader from Cincinnati 3 2 and 1 0 Camilli smacked a homer for the lone tally in the second

Wesley Ferrell of the Red Sox blocked the Tigers royal road and fanned the American League leaders 5-4 as he chalked up his 24th win of the season

Indians Win

Tony Lazzeri came through with a pinch single in the ninth to drive home Red Rolfe with a run and a 4-3 decision for the Yanks over the St Louis Browns The win coupled with Detroit's defeat shaved the Tigers comfortable breach to 8½ games

The Cleveland Indians defeated the last place Athletics 5-3 as Rookie Pitcher Vallie Eaves experienced difficulty in finding the plate The rookie walked the first three men to face him in the opening frame and all three scored

Jimmy Dykes double scored the run that gave the White Sox victory over Washington in a 14-inning struggle The game had been a pitchers battle between Stratton and Fischer of the White Sox and Earl Whitehill of the Senators

OHIO U. GRID COACH SEES BIG THINGS IN WHITCUM, BURNISON

Marion and Galion Candidates Fighting for Posts on Bobcat Team

Big things are expected from Maurie Whitcum, Marion sophomore and Don Burnison veteran guard of Galion by Coach Don Peden this season at Ohio university

In the face of strong competition for a backfield post the former Harding High school star stands a good chance of capturing a regular position on the 1935 Bobcat squad while the scrappy Burnison a senior is almost assured of a position on the line

Whitcum is one of the outstanding passers and kickers to join the varsity this season from last years freshman ranks James Heiser a sophomore and Ed Holmquist veteran center, both of Mansfield, are also listed among the outstanding candidates for this season reports from the Athens school declare Both were former N C O opponents of Harding High

Coach Peden sent his Ohio university gridders at a furious pace last week as he prepared the Bobcats for their opening game meeting with the University of Illinois at Champaign Sept 28

Peden, star Illinois halfback in his day, is quite anxious to show his old coach Zuppke a favorable illustration of what he has been doing since leaving the campus of the Illini This has brought about a rigorous schedule of drills for the 1935 Bobcats

SPIRIT IMPROVED AT HARDING PRACTICES

Delaware Willis To Meet Presidents on Stadium Field Saturday.

A spirit which promises a much better showing by Harding High school's football squad against Delaware Willis High here Saturday than revealed against the Tiffin Calvert eleven last week in the 1935 opening game has been manifest in practice of the Presidents this week

A second heavy workout was given the Harding players yesterday by Coach Carl Cramer who plans to make the best of every minute of practice available this week Although Delaware is not as strong as the Tiffin eleven the Senators have a heavy team capable of furnishing a fight throughout the game Delaware lost its opener last week at Bucyrus 13 to 0

The Harding line is still a worry to Coach Cramer though guards have been working better in offensive practice and tackles and ends have shown some improvement in defensive play Considerable work is in store for the remainder of the week in polishing the Harding plays to be used against the visitors Saturday

Max Baer Is Enigma Experts of Fight Busin

Ex-Champ Looks Bad in Training; Will Have Dempsey in His Corner.

By EDWARD R. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

SPECULATOR N Y Sept 18—The closer Max Baer gets to his do-or-die duel with Joe Louis, the more perplexing a problem he presents to the prizefight business.

Here he is former heavyweight champion of the world so doggedly determined to win this fight that he lives it every waking moment, dreams it when he's sleeping He is so perfectly trained that he charges about his drill ring and camp like a moose being broken to harness

He is more serious better prepared than he ever was for his triumphs over Max Schmeling and Primo Carnera so serious that he will have Jack Dempsey in his corner in the Yankee Stadium with its $1 000 000 worth of customers next Tuesday night.

Yet for all his efforts he still looks so bad when he gets in there with his sparring partners that the experts who picked him moan and shake their heads

Those who declared for Louis the fastest, deadliest puncher boxing has seen since Dempsey prancing around shaking hands with each other Dozens of them are here from all over the country

Listen said Baer as his world supporters nailed him down for reassurance I'm fighting Louis next Tuesday night not these sparring partners I don't have to lick them They don't fight like Louis will fight I'm getting in shape my way Stop worrying

It is a matter of record that Baer was terrible at Atlantic City preparing for Schmeling—lethargic uninterested

He would box 12 rounds never work up a sweat and lose all 12 to his sparring partners But he was a ball of fire when they rang that starting bell on him against Schmeling

He looked even worse before his fight with Carnera In fact Bill Brown New York state athletic commissioner said the fight shouldn't be permitted because of Baer's lack of condition

But Max was a tornado in that one too He looked bad preparing for Braddock and he stayed bad but he never could do anything with a jabbing boxer

One of the reasons for Baer's recent poor showings is the crouch he has adopted a queer turtle like sort of a stance from which he can neither hit nor defend himself Experts thinking of the speed and decisiveness of Louis' left hook and right cross shudder as Baer flounders around in it, taking everything his sparring partners throw

"That crouch" said one of his helpers today "What's the kidding ourselves That's going to give Louis something to think about He'll be looking for instead Baer will come out fighting as he always has.

If Louis is fooled that's one thing We aren't fooled But it's box a lick He can't even box. But he can fight like a grizzly bear when he's ready he's ready right now

Physically Baer looks 100 per cent and he is certain to win in four rounds His spirits are high If he fought in training he looks out of the ring he would be a general favorite to new top prices for 1935 were U S Steel, Chrysler, Case, Johns Manville, Monsanto and Greyhound Allied Chemical jumped 6 points, but Du Pont, up nearly 7 yesterday ran into realizing sales Other shares up about 1 to 2 included Santa Fe New York Central, Union Pacific, Illinois Central, General Electric and Westinghouse Electric. Some of the motion picture issues came forward, notably Warner Bros. and Paramount Second preferred. Non ferrous metals and utilities in the main were little better than steady

Wall street turned its attention away from the Italo-Ethiopian situation and ominous naval movements about the Mediterranean to consider the autumn business outlook at home and found it hopeful The lag evident in some lines at the moment was attributed to the almost unanimous motor makers' shutdown coincident to new model introduction As the work progresses however a substantial business seemed to be in prospect for the steel makers, motor accessory and parts manufacturers, and related lines.

A hint that competition will remain keen in the new automobile season however was seen in the announcement of the Buick Motor Co division of General Motors one of the first to get its 1936 line started that price reductions ranging from $40 to $885 had been made on the various models
